EMAsphere and Belfius join forces to help companies manage their cash flow

Against an uncertain economic backdrop, which directly impacts the cash flow of companies, Belfius has joined forces with EMAsphere, a SaaS reporting platform dedicated to monitoring financial performance. Through exclusive dashboards accessible in EMAsphere, Belfius' corporate clients benefit from reliable and up-to-date financial indicators. It is an essential tool to facilitate their decision-making and ensure their sustainability.

Controlling cash flow in an uncertain environment

With rising raw material, labour and energy costs, it is more important than ever for companies to be responsive. But without reliable and real-time data, it is difficult to make decisions calmly and to justify a request for financing.

Digitalisation and automation of financial data is therefore an important step. Belfius and EMAsphere have entered into a partnership to fulfil this need and to eliminate Excel-based reporting.

The offer developed by the two companies allows Belfius' corporate clients to benefit from automatically updated and reliable financial reporting specifically created to monitor their cash flows.

The use of such reports is also an important asset in the information exchange between the client and Belfius and could in the long term enable the proactive offering of tailor-made financial solutions.

A reporting system created for Belfius' corporate customers

To benefit from this reporting model, the EMAsphere platform is connected to the company's accounting software. The Belfius' customer has direct access to its figures and can view pre-defined reports such as: financial performance and cash flow reporting, customer and supplier payment terms, the evolution of financial results or a cash flow health report. These indicators are essential for anticipating cash requirements and deciding whether a short-term loan or other financial solution is required.

François Franssen, Head of Segment Marketing Enterprises & Public at Belfius, explains that, “This partnership is part of our strategy to support our client companies in their development and financial management. Our customers want a tool which allows them to know their present and future cash flow needs. EMAsphere appeared to us as the ideal partner sharing our values, with a Belgian base and a 100% digital, reliable and easy-to-use solution.”

Reginald Nobels, Associate Director at EMAsphere, concludes that, “Our mission has always been to help companies make decisions with reliable and up-to-date data. This is all the more important in the uncertain times we all face. This collaboration is an important step for EMAsphere. Through our trusted partner Belfius, we will be able to make our reporting platform available to many companies in Belgium and support them in their financial management.”
